Who we areWho is providing this notice?

First National Bank of Omaha. If you have another account relationship with us, you will receive a separate notice applicable to that account.

What we doHow does FNBO protect my personal information?

To protect your personal information from unauthorized access and use, we use security measures that comply with federal law. These measures include computer safeguards and secured files and buildings.

How does FNBO collect my personal information?

We collect your personal information, for example, when you:

- Open an account or give us your income information
- Pay your bills or provide employment information
- Provide account information

We also collect your personal information from others, such as credit bureaus, affiliates, or other companies.

Why can't I limit all sharing?

Federal law gives you the right to limit only:

- sharing for affiliates' everyday business purposes—information about your creditworthiness
- affiliates from using your information to market to you
- sharing for nonaffiliates to market to you

State laws and individual companies may give you additional rights to limit sharing. See below for more on your rights under state law.

What happens when I limit sharing for an account I hold jointly with someone else?

Your choices will apply to everyone on your account.
